MORE SCANDAL.

Another Policeman Gone Very Much Wrong.

Officer Govfrey and "Detective" Jack son in a Pickle.

The Former Turns In His Star a Steps Down and Out.

Some of the Los Angeles police officers have evidently made up their minds to keep the gossips' tongues wagging. No sooner does one plunge headlong into a scrape and flounder out than another one scrape and flounder out than another one falls down and makes his brother officers wish they were in better company. When these black sheep in the flock are not on duty they do as they please, and when they are on duty they seem to have things pretty nch their own way. During the pas circles popped up yesterday morning at 3 o'clock when Officer C. E. Godfrey passed in his star and wrote out his resignation in a trembling hand. Day before yesterday Godfrey drew his salary, amounting to $0. lie felt richer than he had been for some time, so he made up his mind to have "a high old time" for the space of a few hours at least. As soon as this idea made its way through his official skull he headed his nose for Sepulveda street, the most disreputable of all the streets in Los Angeles. "There are a number of negro houses of lil-fameon Sepulveda street, and Godfrey's police knowledge told him that it is the "proper caper" among some of the "swell youth" of Los Angeles at present to spend their leisure time and "the Governor's" hard-carned cash in these low palaces of sin. The officer took one or two drinks on the way down and was getting in pretty good trim when he fell in with that San Antonio (Tex.), detective who styles himself Capt. Jackson and delights in displaying a big gold badge. Jackson and Godfrey had never met before but Jackson is not a bashful man by any manner of means, and by some sleight-of hand trick he learned that the policeman had quite a sum of money on his person, so he introduced himself and proposed to but Jackson is not a 'bashful man by any manner of means, and by some sleight-of hand trick he learned that the policeman had quite a sum of money on his person, so he introduced himself and proposed to paint the town several colors. Godfrey was perfectly willing to be led astray, as he was out for a good time or any other kind of a time; so the two locked arms and headed for Sepulveda street. Jackson evidently took the officer for a rank country 'sucker.' for he not only ran him into some of the lowest gin mills in that part of the city, but he headed Godfrey for one of the lowest of all the low dens in that part of the city, Godfrey walked in, for he said he had made up his mind to see what kind of a greenhorn Jackson had taken him for. Once inside the place they began to have "a good time." They had not been there a great while when Jackson seemed to take possession of the whole establishment. He threw his coat back, displayed his big badge, pulled his pistol and ordered the officer; "I'm a United States officer," said Jackson, "and you have got to de just as I tell you. I have picked that girl out for you pointing to a negro wench!, and you can take her or mosy." Some one in the house telephoned to the police station for help, at this moment, and several officers were sent down on the double quick. They took in the situation at a glance, and Godfrey was hustled off home. Godfrey saw, when he got up yesterday morning and began to think over what he had done, that he was in for it, so he walked down to the police station and handed his-resignation to Clerk Moffat. His excuse for resigning is that he is going into another business, where he got up yesterday morning and began to think over what he had done, that he was in for it, so he walked down to the police station and handed his-resignation to Clerk Moffat. His excuse for resigning is that he is going into another business, where he got up yesterday morning and began to have and held and him held held in the result of them are camping on Jackson's trail, a

A Court Unable to Hear Itself Think, on Account of the Street Noises.
The time in Judge Cheney's court yesterday up to 2 o'clock in the afternoon was occupied in securing a jury in the robbery case of Rochelle and Tapia. The first witness in the case, Lawrence, was put the stand, and had proceeded about fits minutes, when a brass band stopped un the window and commenced playing. T was too much for the court, and Ju Cheney at once ordered Court adjourned this morning at 10 colors. Sheriff Soffice, and during the whole afternoon Sheriff Kays was kept busy giving orders and receiving messages. He sent six more officers down last night, with instructions to keep the mob down at all hazards. If the strikers attempt to keep the next lot of sallors who are sent down from going on board ship. Sheriff Kays is prepared to give them a good warming, as he shas fifteen well-armed men on the ground, who have been instructed to preserve the peace. In case they fail the military will be called out. At present there are about 200 men on the strike, and a large number of them are well armed.

A COLLISION.

Two Freight Trains Badly Wrecked it was generally reported on the street yesterday that another railroad accident occurred near Mojave. From the railroad officials nothing definite could be learned, and an employé of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, seen late yesterday evening, denied the whole story, save that engine No. 23, the largest and finest on the road, had left the track.

A gentleman who arrived in this city

Cheney at once ordered Court adjourned to this morning at 10 o'clock, remarking as he did so, that 'he could stand a steam engine, but drow the line on brass bands.' This latter remark was caused by the increasant puffing of the steam roiler, which was in use on the pavement now being laid on Court street, and which made such a noise that it was impossible for the Court or jury to the art the wilnessat. QUICK BUILDING.

The Santa Fe Depot Practically Finished.

Everything is hustle and bustle around the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé depot. The new freight depot which is being built in place of that recently destroyed by fire, is nearly completed. Little work remains to be done about the building, save setting the heavy scales and putting on the finishing touches. The building is 420 feet long by 32 feet wide, with a receiving platform at the south end S0 feet long. Mr. Lillie, foreman for Kirk & Porter, contractors, informs a Trax's reporter that the structure will be complete, and that the freight offer will be moved from its present quarters by December 44:. Work on the baggare the depot has been a suspended for the present are all beady heavy been put to work on the Eighty Valuable Horses Cre mated.

Destroyed by Fire. Several Other Establishments A

The Total Loss in the Vicinity of Two Bi Thousand Bollars—The Cause a Mystery—Appalling Lack of Water.

At 12:15 this morning a yell of fire, and sudden brilliant reflection on every high building for squares around, called crowds to 50 Los Angeles street, where a disastrous fire was already under fearful headway. N. A. Covarrubias, formerly Sheriff of Santa Barbara, and son of Gen. Covarrubias, who was a California delegate to the National Democratic Convention in 1852, which nominated Franklin Pierce, "Nick," as he is generally called, is the best-known horseman in Southern California, and his Club Stables on Los-Angeles street, just below Second, has been the most fashionable stable in this part of the State. It was a huge and well-appointed concern, and great numbers of the leading men of this city kept their horses and carriages there. His prices were very high, and only fine horses and vehicles were quartered there. It was impossible to learn, owing to the latences of the hour, just what was in the stable; but to the best of Mr. Covarrublas's knowledge there were ninety-eight valuable horses in the stable, and a great value in carriages, harness, etc.

the stable, and a great value in carriages, harness, etc.

The cause of the fire is not definitely known; but a paisano smoking a cigarette near the haymow is supposed to be responsible. At all events, the fire started in the now and spread with fearful rapidity. In five minutes from the first yell, the whole have structure was a furnace. Five horses only were rescued, and ran up street wildly—some with blankets blazing like a set piece of fireworks. The Nadeau bus, a hack, and three or four smaller vehicles, which were close to the door on Los Angeles street, were rolled out by the crowd and saved. A few armsful of harness were also carried out; but there was no other salvage. So swift was the spread of the flames that before fifty people could reach the spot the nicety horses were dead or unconscious—some in their stalls, some in remote corners, but a sickening holocaust of them piled high near the center of the blazing pile.

The fire department turned out, a priy, but were hampered by inability to get water. It was impossible to put on a first. Tho tanja was dry, and flugs were feeble. It was ten morning the shame of the first stream was on hand and played a man's part—his cool judgment, quick insight and rapid tark, as well as the ease with which he miled his men, were in happy contract to the shameful lack of water. The work was intelligently and well done, and in ten minutes after the first stream touched the front of the five, the configuration was under control and the danger over.

The galvanized iton cornice works of Haben & Philip, rext door south, was consumed. Most of the contents were surned, The house-smithing and general black-smithing establishment of Fruhling Bros., No. 54, was also burned to the ground, though much of the portable material was removed. At 12:25 the little two-story frame block next south—beginning at No. 56—caught fire. It was badly scoroled but not consumed. Everything had been removed from the building in a somewhat demoralized condition. At 12:35 the last timber of the gr

No Certainty as to the Origin of the Fire.
Absolutely nothing could be definitely arned. There was a total absence of ore than theories. All that could be got income than theories. All that cauld be got out of any one was that it started in the hay in the rear of the stable, and the first they knew of the fire was when everything was ablaze and they had to run for their lives. Beneito Valenzuela, who slept in a room in the second story of the building in front, said he was awakened by shouts of fire from the boys down-stairs. He jumped up and went down-stairs at once, and opened and went down-stairs at once, and opened the front doors. As he was only half-clad and bare-footed, he went back for his clothing, and, when he started down, everything was so dark from the smoke that he had to crawl down on his knees. He knew nothing about the origin of the fire.

Howard, a colored man, and one of the hostlers, who was sleeping among the buggies, on the ground floor, in the front part of the stable, was awakened by the heat, and found the canvas over his head ablaze. He at once started for the horses in his charge, and succeeded in getting out one horse. He unhitched three others, but they ran back into the blazing passageway. The heat was so intense that he had to leave. When he first woke up he saw the fire burning fiercely in the hay at the rear of the stable. Could give no theory as to its origin.

which were boarders, belonged to wealthy citizens, and, at a rough estimate, were valued at $24,000. The carriages belonging with these boarders were also a total loss, there being but little insurance, as far as is known at this time, on either the horses of carriages. The carriages and buggles of these parties were valved at from $50,000 to $75,000, making a total loss of $99,000 for the citizens who had horses in the stable, "Nick" was seen by a Trimes reporter and estimated his loss at $50,000. He carried only $5000 insurance—$5000 on the building.

Frubling Bros.' from factory and general blacksmith shop was almost a total loss, there being but little insurance on their establishment. They are plucky young men who had built up a good trade and had just put in steam power. They had a full stock and good machinery, and their loss will probably reach $90,000.

agency stood right out next to the stable, and several of the sewing machines were smashed up in moving.

"The Athambra restaurant fixtures were yanked out into the street, and tables and dishes were smashed up. Mext to this was the Wadman Stove and Plambing Company. Everything in this establishment was thrown out into the street and a great deal of damage was done. The lows from water and moving goods into the street will probably reach $500. The pickle and vinegar works next to Frubling Bros.' establishment was almost a total loss, the insurance being very light. The loss is estimated at $10,000. This makes a total loss of $154,000.

The following citizens lost horses and carriages:

He also lost a livery wagon. B. F. Donegan lost his racer Lillie White, valued at 4000, Mr. Bonner lost two horses valued at 41000. Mr. Bonner lost two horses valued at 41000. Mr. Bonner lost two horses and buggy valued at 42000. H. L. Macniel lost one horse and buggy valued at 42000. E. T. Wright lost two horses and two carriages.

M. M. Coob iest two horses and two carriages, a valued at 41000. Sunset Telephone Company, two horses and wagons. L. Vigues, two horses and one carriage, insured for 4500 and valued at 41500. Silent & Co. lost two horses.

The stable was in the center of a row of frame buildings, most of which were damaged or the contents injured by water or in removal. Next to the stable on the north side was the establishment of the Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine Company. This was closed and nothing could be learned as to the losses or insurance. The Wadman Stove and Plumbing Company, next door, were damaged by removal and some loss was caused by breakage.

The Germania wall-paper house only had the stock disarranged and thrown about the floor; damage noulinal. The St. Louis Lead Company, on the corner, was damaged slightly. On the south side next to the stable was the galvanized iron works of Fruhling Bros., next door, was destroyed, but some of the stock was saved in a damaged condition. A narrow alley is at this point, which checked the Sre. The firm of Gardner & Co., plano dealers, had their stock dauaged slightly by removal. The upper stories of these buildings were occupied by families, who had their furniture damaged, if not destroyed, by being thrown from the windows. There was little, if any, insurance, and the individual boses were all small, but no approximate estimate can be given, owing to the confusion prevailing at the time.

HORSES SAVED.

ber of horses saved, but at the hour of going to press it was estimated that from fifteen to twenty had escaped. Seven were taken to the City Stables by Officer Reel and Louis Ebinger. Some of them were badly burned, but it is not believed that any of them will die. Several other parties reported finding horses, but their names and residences could not be learned.

MORE OFFICERS.

Extra Peace Protectors Forwarded to San Pedro.

There was a good deal of excitement about the Sheriff's office yesterday on ac-count of the trouble-that is brewing at San Pedro. When the eight deputy sheriffs reached that place night before last, they were met at the depot by about 200 union sailors, who seemed to have an idea that another batch of sailors from San Francisco had been brought down. They did not make any demonstrations, but when ques-tioned they were not at all backward about any decided signs of war until yesterday morning, when they got among the 'long-shoremen. They did all in their power to induce the laborers to go on a strike, but they did not order them to quit work. Things grew hotter-and hotter during the forenoon, and shortly after 12 o'clock the officers opened communication with the Sheriff's office, and during the whole afternoon Sheriff Kays was kept busy giving orders and receiving messages. He sent six more officers down last night, with instructions to keep the mob down at all hazards. If the strikers attempt to keep the next lot of sallors who are sent down from going on board ship, Sheriff Kays is prepared to give them a good warming, as he has fifteen well-armed men on the ground, who have been instructed to preserve the peace. In case they fail the military will be called out. At present there are about 300 men on the strike, and a large number of them are well armed.

occurred near Mojave. From the railroad officifis nothing definite could be learned, and an employé of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, seen late yesterday is evening, denied the whole story, save that engine No. 23, the largest and finest on the road, had left the track.

A gentleman who arrived in this city by yesterday's afternoon train and was delayed five hours at the wreek, reports that the accident was a collision between two freights; that the large and fine engine No. 23 was thrown from the track and badly demolished. Ten box cars were more or less injured. The accident was probably caused by carelessness in leaving open a switch. As far as could be learned by the gentleman no one was injured.

The accident happened a short distance above the Mojave station.

THE LOSSES.

The loss on the stable building, horses and rolling stock is almost total. The stable contained 95 horses, 60 of which were boarders. Ninty of them perished in the flames. These were valued at from $150 to $1000 apiece. The 60 which were boarders, belonged to wealthy citizens, and, at a rough estimate, progressing at $24.000. The correlates he

Thursday's San Francisco Chronicle

Thursday's San Francisco Chronicle says:

Police Court 1 was crowded yesterday afternoon, the attraction being the continuance of the trial of the forgery cases against Seneca Augustus Swalm.

The first witness called was John E. Dyer, deputy sheriff of Placer county, who arrested Swalm at Colfax and brought him to this city. He related the story of the arrest, already unlished and told, with evident self-satisfaction, how Seneca had tried to bribe him and how he, in the honesty of his heart, had scorned the offer with contempt. The defendant had said to him immediately upon his arrest: "Well, I guess the trouble must be in reference to either the McDonald matter or the Central Pacific Railroad certificates." The deputy sheriff detailed the circumstances attending his return to this city with Swalm in custody, which were printed in full on the first day of the trial. The prisoner had repeatedly endeavored to bribe the officer to "lose him." offering him as much as $5000 as an inducement. Dyer repeated his testimony five times, this course being necessary, as that number of separate and distinct charges of forgery are lodged against Swalm.

There was a sensation in court when Miss Minnie Riegel took the stand. She is the nurse girl and supposed confidant of Mrs. Clara Belle McDonald, and it was expected that the able prosecutor, Flournoy, would draw a spicy story from her. The contrary proved the case, however. Miss Riegal evidently thoroughly understood what she was there for, and no amount of "pumping" could induce her to betray her lady. She did not remember ever having seen Mr. Swalm in all her life. She had been Mrs. McDonald's constant attendant at the St. Elmo Hotel, Los Angeles, at the Palace Hotel during her residence there, and af 8164 Haight street since her removal thither. Many gentlemen had visited Mrs. McDonald at all these places, but the faithful nurse of Baby McDonald had never seen Mr. Swalm until she saw him sitting in the courtroom. The young woman's memory was decidedly treacherous as to ot

"Now, my young woman." said Mr. Flournoy, impressively, pointing his index finger at the witness and glaring at her with a fierceness that made her quake, "is it not a fact that you came down town that evening in a coupé with your lady, the baby and Attorney Rankin?"
"Oh see I believe I did."

Rankin?"
"Oh, yes, I believe I did."
"And," went on the attorney, "were not you and baby driven to a certain house and left for the night?"
"I believe we were."

"It was er—it was—but, really, I

"Is it possible that you remained all night at a house and cannot now remember where it is?"
"It is possible."

In brief, Miss Riegel remembered nothing, and the combined efforts of Judge and attorney failed to shake her. She had never heard Clara Belle call Seneca "darling" or any other tender Detective Ben Bohen told about his search of Swalm's baggage and person upon his arrival from Colfax. Bohen found $15,000 in gold notes, $500 in greenbacks, $6000 worth of diamonds, a pistol, a knife and a pair of brask knuckles. The prisoner had told him that he held the jewelry in pawn for $6000, and when asked if they were Mrs. McDonald's he said "No." A sealskin cloak was also found in one of the trunks, which Swalm admitted was ch Swalm admitted was William Crozier and T. W. McFarland, two private detectives, told how from Thursday, November 10th, until Saturday, November 12th, they watched the residence of Mrs. McDonald at 8164 Haight street and had seen Seneca Augustus making frequent entrances into and exits therefrom. The detectives were stationed in a house immediately adjacent and were able to watch the whole proceeding unobseryed. Swalm came on the 10th at 6 p.m., and took Mrs. McDonald out in a buggy. They remained away until 7:10 p.m., when they entered the house together. Seneca did not leave until 1:07 o'clock on the following day. The next afternoon the watchers were a gain at their post. They saw Seneca step up to the door at 5 p.m. and Mrs. McDonald joined him a moment later. The two again entered and the young man did not again appear until 11 o'clock on the following morning, when he emerged from the house and took his way aurriedly down town. The detectives also saw the nurse, Minnie Riegel, and were satisfied she was cognizant of Swalm's visits.

George C. Hickok, the expert, was next called. He had closely examined the handwriting of Swalm, and was sthoroughly familiar with that of R. H. McDonald. He gave it as his opinion that the signatures to the railroad certificates had been formed by the process of tracing, and discovered in them a striking similarity to Swalm's handwriting.

There is Work for All.
[Ban Diege Union.]
The circular forwarded by the Carpenter's Union of Los Angeles to similar organizations in the East, warning carpenters and other artisans to keep away from Southern California on account of the alleged lack of work and the small wages paid for labor, is being given considerable prominence by eastern papers, and is no doubt preventing a great many mechanics from coming here.
Numerous papers on the other side of the Rockles, always ready to throw mnd at California, have taken the willful misstatements of the Los Angeles trades union and distorted the truth still further. We are continually receiving marked copies of such papers, forwarded by people interested in knowing the truth regarding this matter, and from the number received we conclude that the lead is being worked for all there is in it. One of these uurellable papers quotes from the circular a statement that

"That is about the time of it. California is a mighty unhealthy dissets for a poor man."

Knowing as we do, that in San Diego and Le Angele. I well as the small towns in this portion of the State, it is impossible to source the required number of mechanics, even at wares ranging from 8.50 to 84.50 per day, it is exceeding by annoying to see such false statements going the rounds of the eastern press, for it is upon the East that we must rely to keep our labor markets supplied. The real truth of the matter is that California, and particularly this section of the State is, all things considered, the best place in the world for a poor man. Here, the cost of the necessaries of life, aside from the item of house rent, is not much in excess of eastern facures; in the matter of fuel and clothing the difference is largely in our favor, owing to the fact that the laboring man does not have to devote a large portion of his income to protect himself and family from the rigors of winter. During that portion of the year we call winter, in this country it is seldom found necessary to have a fire for heating purposes, and the wage-earner can work the year around, receiving for his labor twice and in some instances thrice the remuneration he could command elsewhere. These are the facts and they may be relied on. Southern California needs an army of gaechanies and laborers, and it is willing to pay good prices for their services.

POMONA, Nov. 29.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] The inclosed clipping, from an eastern paper, speaks for itself, and I am inclined to think it speaks a ite. As you have heretefore paid your respects to this institution, for similar misrepresentations, perhaps you would like to call attention to this, and help counteract the prejudice it is attempting to create. I have recommended this, and heip counteract the prejudice it is attempting to create. I have recommended Southern California to many mechanics at the place where this was published, and several have come to Los Angeles and Pomona during the past sixty days, and all find ready employment at good wages. As this was published in my home paper at St. Paul, Neb., I am anxious that it correct the erroneous impressions it has created by publishing the truth, and will be pleased to refer it to what The Times may say as the unvarnished facts in the case.

[The Times has already, and more than once, refuted the misrepresentations contained in the circular printed by a minority of Sarpenters' Union No. 56 of this city (a copy of which our correspondent incloses). We do not consider it necessary now to go into the matter again.—En.]

The subject of artists' models is one hat the world is never weary of. To begin with, it stimulates the imagination. It implies the existence of deletons, mysterious, ravishing feminity, whose comings and goings make the artist's existence a dream of oriental paralless and cause him to be an tradise, and cause him to be an tof envy to his fellow-men. The at large knows so little about models as a class that the conventional comance which surrounds the subject is even now accepted as its essential ruth. There is, undoubtedly, a certain romance in the life of a model, as there is in the life of an actress. The same imaginative temperament which sends one girl on the stage sends another into the studios. Indeed, many young women unite the two professions. For a pretty young actressout of an engagement, the most natural resource is to become a model. Many of the most attractive models in the New York studios during the past year have been girls who have been actively employed as chorus singers, and in small "speaking parts," or else were studying for the stage, and regarded their posing as a temporary support.

studying for the stage, and regarded their posing as a temporary support.

One of the prettiest and most popular of New York models was a girl with a face of that delicate neo-Greek type so often found among American women and a magnificent head of golden hair. Her slight but rounded figure, beautiful head, and somewhat theatrical fashion of dress gave her THE AIR OF A PRINCES theatrical fashion of dress gave her

THE AIR OF A PRINCES

of stage fairyland. She was on the stage, nominally, but she found posing so much more remunerative that she gave herself up to that entirely, and, as long as her vogue lasted, she made a good deal of money, because she combined in herself many of the qualities that go to make up an ideal model.
She was extremely popular in the studios, and it was said that more than one well-known painter would gladly have laid not only his heart, but his hand, at her feet. To see her reclining on a leopard skin, in diaphanous rosy draperies, of that fine, classic fashion that forms crisp, crinkly folds from shoulder to foot, with all her golden hair gatherel in a knot on the top of her head, was to behold a living Alma-Tadema. And when she smiled at you from among her rose-colored draperies, she made you think of a golden-hearted althea flower. In a dusky red classic robe, with red vine leaves on her head, she became a magnificent young bacchante. Her lovely arms and shoulders, at once youthful, girlish and mature, rendered it possible for her to wear costumes which would have made many women, even pretty ones, look like witches. The curve of her neck was a dream of delight, and she undoubtedly knew the commercial value of her own charms!

Among these princesses of the stadio

Among these princesses of the studio are many women who have drifted into Bohemia through misfortune or social mishaps. One of the handsomest women the profession has known gave up a luxurious home, social position, wealth, name and everything else in England for private reasons, which brought her to America. When her money was exhausted she procured an engagement at a New York theater to "go on," as stage people say, probably TRUSTING TO HER BEAUTY and her elaborate private wardrobe to

TRUSTING TO HER BEAUTY and her elaborate private wardrobe to push her through. But, as she only attended rehearsal when it suited her convenience, she was promptly discharged, and she drifted into the studios. She posed until her strength gave out, and, after a few days of absence from a studio, where a half-finished picture was awaiting her capricious return, she was discovered by the artist, who had come to look her up, dying alone in her lodgings. He was very kind to her, but his kindness came too late. The secretiveness and pride which belong of right to gently born and bred women had led her to conceal her necessities from every one, and she died soon after in the prime of her remarkable beauty. She was like the incarnation of a goddess of summer, large and fair and beautifully formed, with red gold hair, a splendid plece of decoration which Paul Veronese himself might have been glad to inese himself might have been glad to introduce into one of his Venetian bouquets.

Actresses make excellent models because they possess the costume, instinct, and also the ability to pose gracefully and naturally, while, on the other hand, what they learn from artists in such matters is of great value to them in their profession. The charm of being a model lies in the sense of impersonation. This also belongs to the stage, and the woman who has once indulged her fondness for a shifting personality is apt to become a female kaleidoscope. To be a Roman maiden hugging an amphora one day, an old colonial short-waisted beauty the next, and an allegorical decorative figure representing "Day" or "Morning," in scanty garments, the third, is enough to give any woman a distaste for dishwashing and plain sewing.

Then the sense of companionship with clever, brilliant and jolly men, is of itself a pleasure! The relations of an artist with a congenial model who is bright and pretty, are those of comradeship. In many cases radeship. In many cases

ARTISTS FALL IN LOVE with their models, and marriage is the result. It is seldom that any scandal occurs, and when it does it is generally discovered that the model was a woman who would have created scandal in heaven! Some of the best New York artists have married models. I can think of five models at this moment who have become artists wives within two or three years, and they are all young women upon whose reputation there is no stain, which is more than can be said of some of the other women who marry artists and move in "artistic society."

Of course, being a model does not can be said of some of the other women who marry artists and move in "artistic society."

Of course, being à model does not necessarily imply posing for the nude. Many models would very properly be disgusted at the idea of doing such a thing. Others pose nude for certain men, but are never classified as nude models. A few pose nude for academies, and of course do not attempt to coneal the fact.

the salery of a female stesographer and type-writer, who must study and practice for nearly a year before she can command it. The model requires no capital, but tact, strength to stand in uneasy positions, a graceful, supple figure, and a mobile, attractive face. If she has some nice gowns she can use them for posing purposes, and so increase the demand for her services, as many artists, especially those just emerging from the student condition, are not well provided with studio properties. Women artists are apt to be rade and disagreeable to their models, so it is just as well to avoid them as long as there are men to pose for. Many models have been known to receive gratuitous lessons in drawing or painting from artists whom they were fortunate enough to interest in their ambitions, and their pictures have been seen at the New York exhibitions.

A love of excitement and a natural feminine desire for a new sensation sometimes make models of women who have no need of the pecuniary emolument attached to the calling.

THERE IS A FACCINATION

sometimes make models of women who have no need of the pecuniary emolument attached to the calling.

THERE IS A FACCINATION
about a well-appointed studio and a handsome young artist in a picturesque working costume which quite repays the labor of posing. It is tiresome to stand for half an hour at a time, and many models cannot endure the fatigue of standing poses. Some only take sitting poses, and depend on the artistic character of their heads for their popularity. There is a sensuous pleasure in feeling one's self surrounded by beautifully toned draperies and hangings, brica-brac, pictures, eastern rugs and shining brasses, which compensates for the physical discomfort of the situation. Then, where artist and model are particularly congenial, there are dainty luncheons eaten together. Sometimes the model does the cooking, makes the ea or coffee, boils the eggs or lays the cloth. Where the artist has money, that Alladdin's lamp of the modern world, he keeps wonderful amber and crimson cordials in lovely crystal flasks, and jams, preserves and ginger in curious jars, all stowed away behind tapestries. With these does he regale his model. But it is only girls that are pretty and agreeable who are asked to banquets that recall the feast of "The Eve of St. Agnes." It pays to be charming!

The romance of studio life appeals very strongly to the heart of every woman. The life of a model, as long as her popularity lasts, is like a panorama of beautiful sights, pleasant sounds, and delightful sensations. The atmosphere of the studio attunes the souls of both artists and models to sentiment. Fancy sitting all day on a dais in a classic white robe with flowering azaleas all about and above you, shedding their intoxicating perfume on all sides, like a steady stream of heavenly Dreezes! Is it any wonder that the artist falls in love with his model when he sees her raise above him under her canopy of flowers, like a vision of ideal womanhood, a goldenhared saint in a shrine or a Greek girl in heaven. They are certainly ma in studios under most favorable auspices.

Artists insist strenuously on the fact that their relations with their female models are strictly those of business. This is, of course, to protect the model. But young hearts and romantic heads frequently overpower business principles. Youth and love are not going to be gauged by business standards, even in America. Why should not artists marry their models, pray? Is it not natural that a man should fall in love with a woman who is part of his work, whose very presence furthers his aim in life, whose beauty forms the finest decoration of his studio, whose intelligent sympathy makes his labor more agreeable to him, who has a high ideal of the important and dignified part played by the human model in any and every work of art?

Good art demands good models. At present they are rare, and it is not a matter of astonishment that the artist who has discovered a satisfactory female model should make her his own for life by marrying her.

CHARLOTTE ADAMS.

female model should her. for life by marrying her. CHARLOTTE ADAMS.

Finding a Lost Car. A very singular loss and recovery occurred recently on the Union Pacific near Laramie. A special freight running passenger time broke in two on the fill, and the front section ran around a curve so fast that it whipped off the rear car, filled with choice Chinese silks, into the gulab, where it disappeared from sight in the heavy brush. The break was so clean that the two sections were coupled together disappeared from sight in the heavy brush. The break was so clean that the two sections were coupled together without the single car's absence being noticed. For two months that car lay there, while the entire road was being searched high and low for it, and not a soul could guess where it had gone. The other day a cowboy rode into a small station on the line, and casually asked when they were going to clear up that wreck down in the guich. The agent knew of no wreck, and thought the cowboy was fooling with him, but at last, convinced he was in earnest, went with him to the spot where he had indicated the wreck was to be found. There at the bottom of a very deep fill, behind a huge pile of bolders and a mass of sage brush, lay the missing car, No. 99. It was resting on its side, and strangely enough the trucks were in proper place. The doors were sealed, and there was nothing beyond a few bruises and dents in the roof and sides to show that there had been any rough treatment experienced. The agent thought he was dreaming, but when he found he was wide awake, he lost no time in hurrying home and telegraphing to headquarters. The car was raised and its contents found intact. The admirable weather of the mountain region, the absence of rain, and the unfortunate fact that the car was completely hidden from view from the track above, combined to protect the valuable cargo from the ravages of the elements or of passing tramps, so that there was not a doilar's worth of loss to the lot.

A Fatal Want.

"It's a very pretty house," said the young hasband, frankly, "and I like it extremely in itself, but the location is bad. I don't think it will do."

"Why, George," said the young bride, astonished, "what in the world do you mean? It's right in the center of the most fashionable part of the city."

"I know, dear," said George, soothingly. "I know it's the fashionable quarter, and that's just the trouble. You are just from Vassar, you know, and there is not a bake-shop within half a mile."

CHANCES FOR WOMEN.

HE AVENUES OF USEFULNES OPEN TO THE GENTLER SEX.

Girls' Future-Boston Girls' Ugly Walk-Real and False Modesty-

Extracts from the address of Prof. William S. Tyler of Amherst College, at the Mt. Holyoke Seminary semicentennial: Literature, science and art offer to our graduates wide and inviting fields; the professions also are no longer closed against them; the medical profession especially opens to them a sphere of almost unlimited extent which greatly needs the services of educated women, and to which they are peculiarly adapted. In or out of the pulpit also there is ample room and a loud call for more lay-preaching and woman's teaching. The morals, manners and arguments of the bar would be greatly improved by a slight infusion of feminine moral susaion and Mt. Holyoke Christian spirit; and for that matter clerical manners and pulpit eloquence would not be injured by a suffusion of the same spirit. Even in politics a little more "intimidation" from the geatler sex would do no harm. Journalism and the press generally would be refined, and popular education would be exalted, as educated women are beginning to find a place on school boards and school committees, and to control those fountains of influence. The presence of cultivated Christian women in offices, shops and stores is destined to elevate and purify all kinds of business in all time to come. It is preëminently the preregative of such women to guide and form public sentiment in all matters of purity and propriety, manners, morals and religion. Above all, the influence of cultivated Christian women is needed to beautify and sanctify the home, to pervade all the walks of private and social, and thus indirectly of public, life. Thus for women, as well as men, the field now is the world. It is all now wide open, even to the deep requently quoted, or more potent in its influence than that short, pithy saying: "Go West, young man." The same advice may well be given to young woman, go West.

Civilization has always advanced in the world just in proportion to the ascendency of women among the nations and ages. And in no age or nation has the ascendency of women among t

BURLINGAME's contracts in the last two years have amounted to $300,000. A great part of this was city contracts. many of which are still unfinished. It is a criminal offense for a Councilman to hold a city contract. Does anybody expect Burlingame to give up a bus ss of $150,000 a year for the sake of holding a seat in Council, which does not pay a cent-to an honest man?

LAST night's fire was a peculiarly terrible one, in that a large number of fine horses were consumed by the flames. The sufferings of the noble beasts were agonizing. Nearly one hundred lost their lives. They were mostly valuable animals, and the losses run far into the thousands. Mai. Cov. arrubias, the proprietor, and the other owners of the sacrification titled to sympathy.

It does not deal in the leaders who put him up, or to the rank and file who nominated him. The probabilities are that he will be deeply scratched on election day. Can the Democratic reopard change its spots? Not much!

THE chief of the Tribune gang con tinues to have a great deal to say about THE TIMES opposing one of his tools whom he has set up for the Council. He grows hot in the collar when he writes about it-furious to think that anybody should have the temerity to "brook the edicts of the boss," as he seeks to have himself designated. He would have us and the people forget how he treacherously knifed more than one candidate on the last Republican county ticket. His course then was political infamy. His course now is political impudence.

REGISTER!

Remember, voters, that this is th last day for registration before the city election next Monday. Republicana who require to be registered, or reregistered, should not neglect this duty an hour after having their attention called to it. It is not only a duty to register, but it is equally a duty to put a stop to false registration on the part of our friends the enemy, whenever it may be attempted.

A Bad Registration Appointment.

The appointment of E. C. Burlingame a deputy county clerk, to regis-ter voters, was not a fit appointment. It is manifestly not accordant with the proprieties—even if the man's character were unimpeachable—to send out a candidate who employs hundreds of laborers, many of them non-residents to register voters. But in this case there is also the matter of character. Burlingame colonized the Third Ward in the most shameless manner last year, "just as a business proposition," to quote his own words. If he would do it then, he would do it now, when he has his own election at stake. He should not be given additional facilities. County Clerk Dunsmoor, who made the appointment, apparently aims to be impartial, but in this case he clearly made a mistake. He says he has appointed more Democratic deputies this year than Republicans, because more have applied. It isn't right, however, to give such power to every man who applies. Last year's trouble in the Lynch-Vandever matter arose from the appointment of unscru-pulous and dishonest Democratic deputies to register voters.

"Principles, Not Men."

Here is a declaration on the part of this paper which seems to have the same effect upon the testy and excitable Trombone, now edited by the Duke of Bosh, that the flaunting of a plood-red shirt is said to have upon a bob-tailed bovine in fly-time: "THE TIMES is Republican—utterly, wholly and unreservedly Republican."

Well, we stand by that proposition first, last and all the time. But this does not preclude us from dutifully opposing bad nominations occasionally even when made by Republican conventions. The mistake made by the silly censor of the Tribune is in failing to discrimniate between principles and men. The fact that a scoundrel sacrificed stock, are en- or a scrub sometimes works his way to a Republican nomination does not ONE of the Democratic nominees in make him the party nor invest him "smart politition" at the head of it, to get hot in the collar whenever THE Times defines its political position.

That position will stand like a rock long after the gang have been over-

France-Another Twist in the Politica Skein.

Thursday's dispatches assured the world that President Grévy would not resign; that the Radicals had taken alarm at the possibility of Ferry becoming Grévy's successor, and that the mummy-like relic of a long departed generation, Monsieur le President Grévy, would hold the fort.

We are now informed, however, that Grévy has, figuratively speaking, dismounted. His resignation has been received by the President of the Senate and the President of the Chamber of Deputies. Before the latter body it was read yesterday, and at the close of the reading M. Floquet read a letter from the President of the Senate, summoning a congress of the two chambers at Versailles for the purpose of electing a new President.

In the ears of the average American filled, as he properly should be, with the American idea, i. e., the republican idea of a republican government, the foregoing will appear odd and out of

The average American will probably note the fact that the President of France is not succeeded by a vicepresident or any other person constiutionally provided for such an exigency as now exists. He will also note that the President appeals in no manner to the people at large.

The people do not elect the President of France. The President is dent of France. The President is elected by the Corps Legislatif, the Senate and Chamber of Deputies convened for that purpose as one body. The French Legislature may be elected, as is the case at the present time, with no reference whatever to the election of a President. In this very nner Grévy himself has been twice truth is the Constituti France is not republican; therefore, according to the American idea, France is not a republic. Were it wholly and unreservedly a republic MacMahon would never have accepted the Presidency, and the same is true of Citizen Grévy.

Twelve years ago the French Constitution was adopted. It is a singular instrument; a compromise between the monarchical nobility and the republican masses. As usual the classes retained the heavy end of things, and while the Constitution embodies in part both the nonarchical and the republican ideas, it is chary of republicanism and generously monarchical.

The ousting of Grévy has been made possible by a singular provision of the French Constitution. The President is elected for seven years. The Constitu-tion vests him with attributes and responsibilities resembling somewhat those of the British Premier. When a 'government' measure is beaten and the President cannot agree with the Senate, and when the Chamber of Deputies is opposed to him, he is ex-perted to resign; and if he fails to resign his resignation can be formally demanded. On the other hand, if the President can establish a good under-standing with the Senate, he has the constitutional right to dissolve the Chamber of Deputies.

—Later reports say that some balloting has been had by the Republican group, but the regular election occurs today. There is no lack of candidates. De Freycinet, Ferry, Brissön Floquet and others, representing vari ous shades of political opinion, are in the field. All but one will probably belong to the Extreme Left tonight.

A Plain Duty.

Some anonymous person signing him self "A Straight Republican" writes to THE TIMES that the Republican City Central Committee should drop Mr. Morgan, the regular Republican nominee in the Second Ward, and indorse James Booth, the Anti-Saloon candidate. This is hardly modest. Mr. Morgan, who is honest, intelligent and well known, was nominated by the Republican caucus in his ward. Mr. Booth's name was brought before the same caucus, but he got only seven The Central Committee in dorsed the choice of the caucus, and Mr. Morgan is in every respect regular Republican nominee. Being this, and a good man, he should be voted for by every Republican in that ward.

Now, the pith of the situation is just this: Cuddy, the Democratic nominee there, is anfit for the place. He is a recent graduate from the whisky business, and does not even command the undivided support of his own party; many of the cleanest men in it are against him. But he is the special favorite of the opposite sort, who are more numerous, probably, in the Sec-Ward than in all the rest of the city combined. Cuddy cannot reasonably be claimed as a suitable man to trust with the proper restriction of the saloons, nor with the spending of nearly a million of city money. This is stating the case in its mildest form. Booth cannot be elected. Morgan can be. If Mr. Booth is a good Republican and a real friend of temperance he can serve both causes better by withdrawing, and thereby electing an equally safe man, than by staying in the field and thereby electing the bitterest enemy of both. Whatever course Mr. Booth may per sonally decide upon, the Republicans of the Second Ward have a plain duty to do. Do the anti-saloon men among them want Cuddy in the Council? If they do, let them vote for Booth. THE leaders of the Anti-Saloon party, embracing some excellent citizens, complain that the party's action in the pending municipal contest is true party man is he who always keeps by the Los Angeles Tribunes They say principle in sight, at the sacrifice, the Tribune lies, and lies like a tomb when need be, of faithless men. This stone, about them. This is not sur truth when lying will serve the private, personal, vicious purposes of its conductors. It cares nothing for principle or party, but is hot after boodle. It is crawling and corrupt concern. THE TIMES desires to see the Anti-Saloor ticket and the Democratic ticket both defeated, and the Republican ticket elected; but the temperance people who have considered it their duty to organize a party and put a ticket in the field, are entitled to at least decent treatment at the hands of a public journal. We think the Antipeople would best forward their cause by joining hands with the Republicans but they think otherwise. Having nominated a full ticket, they naturally object to seeing the statement pub-lished, and repeated, as it has been in the unprincipled Tribune, that they have abandoned the field. The extreme temperance people are unreasonable in some things, but not unreason able in asking that the truth be told about them in a public journal especially one that is posing (now and then) as a temperance advocate.

THE Tory Government of England has put shame upon the manhood of Britain. Says the San Francisco

Britain. Says the San Francisco Chronicle:

"When Balfour's agents descended to stenling O'Brien's clothes when he was asleep, in order to force him to adopt the lowest depth of meanness was reached; but now we have to record an act meaner and more petty than this. It is nothing less than the sentence to a nonth's imprisonment of a newsboy in Dublin who sold copies of United Ireland containing reports of meetings of suppressed branches of the league."

THE President's message is in hand, and, from all accounts, it will be as voluminous, and perhaps as florid, as the Congressional brief filed by the Ahkoond of Swat.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 3.—[Special.]
Edward H. Carpenter, local shipping master of the Vessel-Owners' Association, spent the greater part of today in endeavoring to secure sallors to go to Humboldt Bay by the steamship Hamboldt, which departs tomorrow. He thinks that, even if the demands of the sellow Union he met the ship owner. of the Sailors' Union be met, the ship owner has no guaranty that he will not be desert-ed or left in the lurch when the men are most wanted. He said that, if the question were one of wages alone, there would be no lifficulty. For good men there is no hesitation in paying whatever wages should be established, but it is the entire control of vessels that the Saliora' Union demands, and this the vessel owners will not concede, and will let their ships remain idle before so doing. The Saliora' Union by no means comprises even a majority of the saliors of the coast. Non-union saliors reject the assumptions of the union, and will not be dictated to by it.

The prospects are that the difficulty will ation in paying whatever wages sho tated to by it.

The prospects are that the difficulty will first begin by resistance of non-union men, who are prepared to fight. In fact, there is every probability of bloodshed between these two factions at no distant day. The control of the union is in the hands of men who seem determined to keep the whole business in a ferment. A higher rate of wages is demanded at Eureka and San Diegothan at this port, and a man may ship a crew for either of these ports, which nay leave him, notwithstanding their writ-en contracts, as soon as the ship arrives, and the owner has no recourse. It cannot be long before the difficulty will be transferred to this city, but the vessel owners are now shipping non-union men, and find enough for all demands, paying $40 per

SAN JOSE, Dec. 2.—[By the Associated SAN JOSE, Dec. 2.—[By the Associated Press.] José Ramírez, the condemned mutderet, lay down upon his cot about midnight, and in a few minutes was sound aslesp. He remained in this condition until dawn, when he awoke and greeted the guard in the cell with a pleasant "Good morning." After dressing he received a call from Father Picardo, who ad-"Good morning." After dressing he received a cail from Father Picardo, who administered to him the last rites of the Catholic Church. After the father's departure Ramirez called for breakfast, and it was brought. He ate with a reliab. Sheriff Sweigart next came into the cell to read the death warrant, but the man waived this formality. He made a request that the guards who had spent the last few days with him should accompany him to the gallows, which the Sheriff premised him should be done. The crowd began gathering around the jail at 10 o'clock, and an hour later 500 people stood on the street, many of them discussing the facts connected with the murder of Acero by Ramirez and Prado, the latter of whom is now serving a term of life imprisonment. Ramirez was in exceedingly good spirits and chatted with friends in the cell.

Father Picardo and a missionary returned, and while they were engaged in earnest conversation with the prisoner, final preparations were being made for the execution on the scaffold. The march to the scaffold began at 11:30. The prisoner walked without displaying the least sign of nervousness. On the way he stopped to shake hands with a number of friends. He ascended the steps to the scaffold lightly and without assistance, and turning toward the crowd below, he exclained: "Good-bye to all; good-bye." After he had kissed the crucifix, the cap and noose were quickly adjusted. The Sheriff gave the signal and at 11:40 the trap fell, and the lifeless body of the murderer of Fernando Acero hung at the end of the rope. NEED NOT FORK OVER.

The San Diego County Treasurer and Shaw's Claim.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 2 .- [By the Asse clated Press. The Supreme Court has reversed the action of the San Diego Soper-ior Court in granting Shaw a writ of mandamus against Statler, Treasurer of San Diego county, compelling the latter to pay Shaw a claim allowed by the Board of Diego county, compelling the latter to pay Shaw a claim allowed by the Board of Supervisors for services as chain-gang boss.

The validity of the warrant was not questioned, but the Treasurer refused to pay it because certain warrants for previous years had been previously presented and there was notenough money on hand to pay these should Shaw be paid first. The opinion of the Supreme Court on this point is, that while the State Constitution does not expressly provide that the income and revenue each year shall be applied to the indebtedness of that year, yet such was the necessary implication. If this were not so, the revenue for a given year might all be used up at the commencement in the payment of old claims, and, there being no mere income for that year, no more debts could be contracted and the business of a city or county could be stopped, which could not have been intended. This being the case, it was not necessary to decide whether, if any funds were left over after the payment of expenses of the year, they would be applied to pay claims standing over from previous years.

Sparks from a locomotive set fire to an immense body of dry tules. In a short time the flames swept over a large portion of the valley. In that neighborhood are several extensive cattle firms, who have thousands of tons of hay and many hundred head of cattle in winter quarters. The fire destroyed all the hay and the cattle were head of cattle in winter quarters. The fire destroyed all the hay, and the cattle were in danger of being burned to death. A strong wind was blowing at the time. It is impossible to estimate the damage in figures. The loss in hay, fencing, and probably houses, will be very heavy. The loss falls heavily on stock-growers of Grande Ronde Valley, especially at this season of the year, when it is impossible to replenish the stores and hay, and, should the winter be severe, the loss of stock will be enormous.

CLEVELAND'S MESSAGE.

New York, Dec. 2.—[By the Associated Press.] A Washington special to the Tribune says:

The President, at a meeting of the Cabinet yesterday, submitted a rough draft of the forthcoming annual message to Congress. It was discussed four hours, and will again be submitted to the Cabinet Friday. The message will probably be one of the longest official documents ever written by Cleveland. Those who know say it will contain 22,000 words. It is ascertained that Mr. Bayard's department will absorb the lion's share of the message. He will announce, in the first place, either the result of the fact that they are still at work. There is an impression prevailing that the commission will sit for the last time on Saturday next. This indicates that the negotiations of a new treaty have been found impracticable. The result is said to be favored by Mr. Bayard, who is represented as despairing of getting the treaty acted upon by the Senate in its present temper. What the President will probably be able to announce in his message is that the commission has agreed upon an interpretation of the treaty of 1818.

The revision of the naturalization laws.

agreed upon an interpretation of the treaty of 1818.

The revision of the naturalization laws, establishment of a central bureau of registration of naturalized citizens, and a hint as to the advisability of restricting by Federal statutes the immigration of an undesirable kind of people, are among the topics discussed by the President, in view of the recent Anarchist demonstrations in warlous parts of the country.

Regarding the tariff and other questions of finance, the President will have little to say, the present plan being, it is said, to let the Secretary of the Treasury deal with both questions in his annual report. In a general and very guarded way, the President recommends, it is understood; a liberal enlargement of the free list, mentioning.

dent recommends, it is understood, a liberal enlargement of the free list, mentioning, however, the names of none of the articles, which, in his opinion, ought to be placed thereupon. On the wording of this part of the message, much care and attention has been bestowed.

the message, much care and attention has been bestowed.

Among those to whom it has been read outside of the members of the Cabinet are Carlisle, Scott and Watterson. Randall was given no opportunity to inspect it.

The codification of banking laws amended in the manner proposed by the Comptroller of the Currerrey is commended. The President, it is thought, will, in a cautious way, recommend a liberal system of appropriations for the improvement of the Mississippi River, He will likewise suggest, it is believed, that the appropriations for this river be made separately, and not, as heretofore, in the Harbor and River Bill, which has always regarded as an object of supicion, more or less.

Repeal of the Preëmption and Timber-Culture Acts is urged in the strongest terms. The necessity of preserving national fores:s is pointed out.

The Pacific railroads, it is understood, will be the subject of a special message later on.

POWDERLY.

His Views on the Dissensions Among the Knights.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—[By the Associated Press.] The Philadelphia Journal of United Labor has Powderly's second letter on the works of "Knighthood." He calls attention to the fact that the Knights of Labor grown (2000 to hood." He calls attention to the fact that the Knights of Labor grew from 10,000 to over 700,000 in a short time. While this was going on, men were being biackmailed and discharged, but never murmured. Continuing, he says: "When I hear men talk of seceding from the organization, with the threat of starting an improved order, I fancy they know little of the trials, dangers and odds against which they will have to contend, and I feel that the amount of energy necessary to build up the new order, if properly applied to the old one, would make it invincible."

AN UNPOPULAR DECISION.

A decision was given yesterday by the Supreme Court in favor of plaintiffs in the cases of Bates against Porter and Housmeister against Porter, two mandamus suits to compel the apportionment of 55 per cent. of the gross receipts from water rates into the sinking and interest fund for the benefit of bondholders. This ruling will have a disastrous effect upon the local government, which has already been tax-ridden beyond eadurance. The city will have to pay all expenses of the operation of the water works, for all improvements, additions and repairs, and give 55 per cent. of the gross revenue toward liquidation of principal and interest on the bopds.

By Telegraph to The Times.

Pants, Dec. 2.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] Everything was quite throughout the city this morning. The papers were generally of the opinion that, after the events of yesterday, President Grévy could not postpone his resignation. They approved the action of the chambers as calm and dignified.

At 1:20 nm. President Grévy's resignation.

At 1:30 p.m., President Grévy'a resigna-Mon was sent to the Presidents of the Sen-ate and Chamber of Deputies. An hour later it was read in the Chamber of Depu-ate and Chamber of Deputies. An hour later it was read in the Chamber of Deputies.

THE MESSAGE.

The text of Grévy's message of resignation is as follows: "So long as I had only to contend with the difficulties that have accumulated in my path, the attacks of the press, the abstention of men whom the public voice called to my side, and the increasing impossibility to form a ministry, I struggled on and remained where duty bade me; but at the moment when public opinion, better informed, marked a change which gave me hope of forming a government, the Senate and Chamber of Deputies voted a double resolution which, under the form of an adjournment to a fixed hour to await the President's promised message, is tantamount to sammoning the President to resign. It would be my duty and right to resigt, It would be my duty and right to resigt, It would be my duty and right to resigt, but, under the circumstances in which we are placed, a conflict between the executive and Parliament might entail sircumstances which restrain me. Wisdom and patriotism command me to yield.

"I leave to those who assume it the responsibility for such precedent and for the events that may ensue. I relinquish without regret, but not without sadness, the dignity to which I have been twice raised without solicitation, and in the exercising of which I feel conscious I have done my duty. To this I call France to witness. For nine years my government has secured to the country peace, order and liberty; has made France respected throughout the world; has worked unremittingly to raise her, and in the midst of armed Europe leaves her in a condition to defend her honor and rights. Further than this, it has been able to keep the republic in the wise internal course marked out by the interests and wishes of the country. In return for this I have been removed from the post where confidence placed me. In leaving political life I form but one wish: It is that the republic may not be struck the blows aimed at myself, but that it may issue triumphant from the

GENERAL FOREIGN BUDGET.

Gladstone Fears for the Future of the Liberal Party.

London, Dec. 2.—[By Cable and Asso-ciated Press.] Gladstone in a letter con-tends that dissenters from his side have parted from Whig traditions in opposing constitutional reforms in Ireland, and have constitutional reforms in Ireland, and have narrowed the spirit and aims of the Liberal party, breaking the eld and invaluable habit of the Liberal party in England, which heretofore regarded the Liberal aristocracy and Liberal labor classes as the natural leaders of the liberal movement. As it is, dissents have esparated classes from classes, and he fears a permanent weakening of tite party unless the higher class of dissenters return to their allegiance and the old principles.

FRISCO NOTES.

The Supreme Court Decides an Important Condemnation Case. SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 2.—[By the Asso-ciated Press.] In the case of the Pacific Coast Railroad Company, the narrow-gauge road running from Port Harford to San Luis Obispo, against Urlah Porter, brought Mashed Ashore.

A telephone message yesterday summoned Coroner Meredith to San Pedro to hold an inquest on the body of a man that condemned Porter's land as follows: Plaintiff to pay Uriah and Fanny Porter $75, the value of the land taken, $800 damages, for the remainder of the land $275, the cost of fencing and cattle guards. Appealing, the company argued that the benefits accruing to the remaining land should have been deducted from the damage assessed. The Constitution expressly provides that an right-of-way shall be appropriated to the use of any corporation other than municipal until full compensation is first made in money, or ascertained and paid into court for the owner, irrespective of any benefit from any improvement proposed by such corporation.

MINNEAPOLIS!

This Townsite! New

Beautifully located on line of Southern Pacific Railroad, four miles north of Los Angeles,

NOW ON THE MARKET!

The Prices of Lots Range from $350 to $450.

TERMS OF SALE - One-third cash, one-third in six months, one-third in one year.

This winter will be a repetition of last. Outside property will advance rapidly, and those who buy now at bedrock prices will not only reap the benefit of all improvements that go to enhance values, but will get full advantage of owners' advances which will occur from time to time during the winter.

We start this new town off with the following advantages: It is only four miles from the city. The Southern Pacific Railroad runs through the tract, and depot and side tracks will be built at once. The Los Angeles and Glendale Motor Railroad, now about completed, runs within 600 feet of this townsite.

The Pasadena Boulevard, now an assured fact, is laid out immediately through the center of the tract. The San Fernando County Road runs along the north line.

There is no finer valley in Southern California. Abundance of water, good nountain air. Parties desiring cheap suburban homes, with rapid and frequent communication with the city, cannot do better than to buy here. Theusands of people will be here this fall seeking homes, and will overflow to outside points for lack of accommodations. Remember how outside property advanced last winter and profit by the experience. Buy early. Free carriage from my office for Minneapolis at 8:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

FRANKLIN & KÜGEMAN

Addressing the students at the Notgham Congregational Institute, Mr. dstone said:

"The controversy between belief and the skeptical movement of the day, which has assumed in our time such portentous dimensions, has its effect undoubtedly in tending to throw us back upon those great Christian truths which we all alike embrace, I believe, with our whole hearts and minds. However little w may be able to adorn the doctrine of Christianity as we ought, yet there is a tendency to throw us back upon these things and to make us appreciate more fully and warmly than we have in other days that broad ground of concurrence which, after the vicissitudes of 1800 years, after all the vicissitudes of 1800 years, after all the orruptions, errors and abuses, nevertheless remains clear and solid and unshaken to the present day, and will do "The controversy between belief and corruptions, errors and abuses, nevertheless remains clear and solid and unshaken to the present day, and will do so till the end of time. [Cheers]. Therefore I regard with sincere interest the foundation of an itstitution such as this, and with warm admiration the munificence of those who bring about such foundations, for I feel that here Christian zeal is likely to be united with Christian knowledge and Christian learning, and that the elevation of tone, which is undoubtedly perceptible in discourses delivered from the pulpits in the present day, is a feature in which all will rejoice. [Cheers]. It strengthens you against those who unhapply cannot accept Christianity as you do, and it tends to the union of all the various bodies of the Christian Church. I can undoubtedly recollect now, looking back over a long life, great changes in the tone of preaching in this country, of which I may venture, without rear of contradiction, to say these two things, neither of them unimportant—first of all, that it has been greatly raised; and, secondly, that it is far more pervaded by

in central and fundamental matters than was the case fifty years ago. Loud cheers.] For though there have been developments which may have seemed to tend toward division, both in the Church of England and probably beyond its limits, yet upon the whole I believe that a perfectly impartial observer, collecting the tone and religious teachings in this country by what is taught out of its pulpits, would say that he perceives both these features that I have described as characteristic of the age—first, that it has tended upward in its quality and character; that he perceives both these features that I have described as characteristic of the age—first, that it has tended upward in its quality and character; secondly, that it has more and more exhibited that fundamental union in the central ideas of Christianity by which Christianity as a whole undoubtedly, in spite of all its divisions, still renders an emphatic testimony in the face of the world and of human kind and of human history—an emphatic testimony to the authority and to the work of our blessed Savior. [Cheers.] These are very happy circumstances; and I will now venture to say one word—as I have been speaking with sympathy of whatever tends to develop feelings of brotherhood among us—I will venture to say before you, with sincere convictions, that the pains and anxieties of the political contention in which we are engaged are greatly mitigated by the conviction which we entertain—I am quite sure that for my friends on this platform and elsewhere I may condidently say so—that our work, if one of strife for the moment, is in its aim and end one of peace [loud cheers.], and one which I trust it is not profane or irreverent to say the Prince of Peace, it may be hoped, will recognize and bless. [Loud cheers.] We are seeking to draw together the kingdoms, the hearts of which are not now united as they should be. We are SEEKING TO PROMOTE HARMONY among different classes and different nationalities, and different confessions, and we believe that when the noise and din of battle are over, instead of those painful and grievous results of victory which made the Duke of Wellington declare that there was nothing after a defeat which was so sad as victory; instead of these results we believe that increased satisfaction, closer union, better hopes and brighter recollections will occupy men's minds, and that all these contentions in which recollections will occupy men's minds, and that all these contentions in which we are now engaged will be buried in blessed oblivion. [Cheers.] Gentlemen, I have in other days known the comfort and advantages of the enthusiastic, and I may say the unanimous support of the non-conforming bodies of this country. [Hear, hear.] In the great causes of humanity and justice [cheers] on the present occasion, we have had their enthusiasm, as I think undoubtedly is the case—we cannot quite say their unanimity [laughter]; but I have the satisfaction in observing in your presence with regard to men of great influence and of great eminence connected with more than one of the larger non-contents. with regard to men of great influence and of great eminence connected with more than one of the larger non-conforming bodies that, although some among them have been unable to follow us, the conduct of every one of those eminent gentlemen, so far as I have observed and am able to speak, has been marked by moderation and toleration. [Cheers.] In no single case have they gone about the country aggravating difficulties which were real and creating difficulties which were thought it necessary to cast suspicion upon our fellow-subjects in Ireland. I speak now of our fellow-subjects of the ROMAN CATHOLIC PERSUASION, ROMAN CATHOLIC PERSUASION, peak now of our fellow-subjects of the ROMAN CATHOLIC PERSUASION, with respect to whom, I am proud to any judging both from their history in their times and from their sentiments, that I believe Protestant liberties will be as safe in their hands when they have obtained their just and legitimate objects as they would in ours. I must eli you, sir, of the profound satisfaction which I enjoyed at the particular moment of a visit I lately paid to South Wales. In the neighborhood of the own of Cardiff I felt that I was among hose who may possibly be called the nest Protestant people and another. There arrived at that place and that time a large number of Roman attholics, constituting a deputation must be city of Cork, and they were covived by the Protestants of South Pals not merely with kinsness, but in the palse and with an enclusiasm, may say, even equal to that which any ourselves have shown within the powers of time, the advance of civilization, and in the vance of civilization, and in the vance of sound religious sympans. It is not yet 100 years ago in the painful years which predefits the larges were sent over from Englishes.

law, but what at that time meant tramping under loot all law, all humanity, all justice and all decency. And I am sorry to say that consplouous among the bodies who at that time forgot themselves and inflicted lawless cruelties upon Ireland was a regiment of North Welshmen, who passed under the name of "Ancient Britons." [Laughter.] How different are the two pictures! Which of them is the best? Which of them befits us most as loyal citizens, as rational men, as believing Christians? [Cheers.] Gentlemen, if the cause of Protestantism be the cause of reason, truth and justice, then in following reason, truth and justice, then in England, Scotland, Wales, Ireland and everywhere else, we shall best serve the cause of Protestantism. [Cheers.]

everywhere else, we shall best serve the cause of Protestantism. [Cheers.]

Why Parsons Joined the Anarchists [Atlanta Coastitution.]

From first to last Parsons has been the most interesting figure in the whole gang of Chicago Anarchists.

He is the only southerner, the only American among them. He is equally ready with his tongue and his pen, and, unlike many revolutionary speakers and writers, he has shown himself to be full of pluck and determination.

People have been at a loss to account for this young man's connection with the Anarchists, and various explanations have been suggested. It is thought by many that Parsons' choice of wife has been at the bottom of his troubles. Before he left Texas he married a dark-faced woman of mixed and his wife found that they could never hope to rise in the social scale. Mrs. Parsons felt this keenly, and her husband as sympathized with her. In their desperation they turned to the Anarchists. Among these daring spirits there was at least social equality. Color, rank and previous condition of servitude did not count. Spies, Fielden and the others did not mind the black current in Mrs. Parsons's velus, and they did not sneer at her husband for marrying her.

The result is known to everybody.

not sneer at her husband for marrying her.

The result is known to everybody. The two outcasts felt grateful to their new friends, and entered heartily into their schemes. They saw in anarchy the only means of overturning society and sweeping away the prejudices of caste. They gave themselves up to the work of bringing about a new order of things, an ideal commune, a socialistic republic composed of a universal brotherhood.

This dram ended in a disastrous brotherhood.

This dream ended in a disastrous crash. The two misguided reformers went down in the wreck. Two more flery souls never staked their all upon the hazard of a single cast. They are worthy of each other. If Parsons has played the role of a tiger at bay, his brown-skinned wife has shown herself a tigress. No matter how wicked and foolish they may have been, they have certainly displayed a courage worthy of a better cause.

OUTFIT—Each machine is supplied with the following outfit: One Hemmer and I e.), Twelve Needles, Six Bobbins, One Wrench, One Quilting Gauge, One Screw in filled with Oil, Cloth Gauge and Thumb-screw and a Book of Directions. The tra attachments are also furnished free: Ruffler, Tucker, Binder, Set of Wide

Having arranged with the manufacturers to supply us with these machines in large quantities for spot cash at or very near first cost, we can save our subscribers at least $65 on the pric of each machine. As this is the first time a sewing machine of this character has been offered the public at about manufacturer's cost, we feel confident our readers will promptly take vantage of this opportunity to provide themselves with first-class high-arm machines, which obtained in any other way would cost them almost three times the amount.

We could fill several columns expatiating on the merits of this high-arm machine, but to save the reader's patience we will simply say that it contains all the modern improvements, is strong, simple, durable, light-running and poiseless.

"GIVING PERFECT SATISFACTION."

PASADENA, Cal., Oct. 30, 1886,

Times-Mirror Company: The TimesMirror Sewing-Machine is giving perfect satisfaction; in my opinion it is as good as any 865 machine. I have not done any heavy work on it yet, but I think it will do it all right. J. W. Ross, Pasadena, Cal.

"HIGHLY PLEASED WITH IT.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 20, 1898.

Times-Mirror Company: In reply to yours of 26th would state that I am highly pleased with the Premium Sewing-Machine I received with the Mirror. Gives every satisfaction; so easy to learn how to manage; does such excellent work; in fact cannot praise it too much, and would not take twice the amount it cost me. K. C. Burlingame, one of the nominess for Council from the Second Waad, has before been mentioned in these columns with respect to his notorious unitness for the office, or for any other public trust. He it was who colonized the Third Ward caucus last year in a manner so brazen as to cause a political revolution therem. His admission that he wants to go to the Council for the sake of getting improvements made in the West End in his property are easily proved. Those who are asked to vote for him will do well to interview almost any man who has ever worked for him. He is an who has ever worked for him. He is gnorant, unprincipled and dangerous. That he is energetic no one denies, but en-rgy simply makes an unscrupulous man he more dangerous. Aside from the mani-est indecency of electing to Council a man who lives by contracts on public works, Burlingame possesses no qualifications for local legislator.

A. A. Henderson being duly sworn deposes and says: I am a civil engineer. Know E. C. Burlingame. Shortly before one of the monthly estimates on the Ostrichfarm rallroad was made he came to me and said he wanted to see me. He said: "Here's this road. We can make something on it. I want you to make me a good estimate on it." I understood him to mean that I should give a false estimate as a civil engineer for the company over my name that he might make money unjustly. He gave me to understand that he would reindurse me. I tried to draw him out. I sent in a correct estimate. He said to Morrison: "Plifood Henderson. He'll give me a good estimate, and then he can go to h—I for his money."

C. J. Morrison, being duly sworn, deposes and says: I have been superintendent for E. C. Burlingame from last January to October 27th and Khow about his business methods. As to his position on the liquor question, he maintained a saloon at his campe from last February up to about September 1st, and he has told me he never paid any license except for the first month. He was making several hundred dollar a month by the saloon out of his men. I have in my possession the one license that was paid. He signed my name to it. He has frequently said to me that he could "work" the Council as he wished already, and could make the Mayor sign any contracts he pleased; but if he could get into Council he would run things just as he liked, and would open up all the streets he wanted at his own figures. I can show crookedness in his dealings with the men he employed and the men he worked for.

When a workman leaves Burlingame's employ for any reason, he doesn't receive pay, except a pay check. This check is no good except when countersigned by Burlingame. Then the man has to go to "Nieger Brown." on New High street for employ for any reason, he doesn't receive pay, except a pay check. This check is no good except when countersigned by Burlingame. Then the man has to go to "Migger Brown," on New High street, to get the check cashed at 10 per cent. discount and upward. Burlingame gets the 10 per cent., so he has told me, and Brown gets only what he can knock out above 10 per cent.

The details of the manner in which he "froze out" McGregor, his partner, who secured a contract on the Ostrich Farm road, will be brought out in court. He came back and told me: "Well, I've froze the s-b-out. The work is all mine now." When we were down at the Ballona, Burlingame wanted me to steal a buggy tongue that was lying near the camp. I said, "No, Ed, I ain't in that kind of business. I've got a wife and family to look out for, and I ain't going to put my neck in a halter for a $12 or $15 buggy tongue." He cursed me for not taking it. I could add much more if it were necessary. His boast that he can "work" the city as he likes seems to be well founded, judging by things I know him to have done.

BURLINGAME's SALOON.

After the last above affidaylt was taken.

BURLINGAME'S SALOON. After the last above uffidavit was taken, a presentative of THE TIMES went to the lice of the Clerk of Council to see about what saloon license. An inspection of the records shows that licenses for Burliagame's saloon, at his grading camp on the Ostrich Farm railroad, were taken out for February and March, in the name of his superintendent. None has since been paid, either in the superintendent's name or Burlingame's. Mr. Morrison swears that the saloon was kept running, however, for many months thereafter—a fact easy of proof—and that Burlingame told him he (Burlingame) made several hundred dollars a month out of the saloon which drew its a month out of the saloon which drew its

"WORKS THE CITY AS HE LIKES."

In connection with this boast of Burlingame's that he already "works" the city about as he likes, a good many people are asking by what authority he has been unmotested in a glaring violation of the fire ordinance. Some months ago he built an office for himself at No. 14 New High street, about opposite the County Jail. The building—which was receted by night—stands there undisturbed, and wears his sign. Anyone can go and look at it and see that it is a flagrant violation of the fire ordinance, being a frame building inside the fire limits. In view of his boasts of 'fluence, there is some curiosity to know why the building has been undistarted by the authorities all these months.

There are numerous other cases of supreme disregard of municipal law, some of which, at least, will be brought before the pablic.

A SUIT IMPENDING. WORKS THE CITY AS HE LIKES.

A TIMES reporter was detailed yesterday to learn the facts about the trouble between Nathan Cole, Jr., and E. C. Burlingame. Cole deals in real estate and builds cottages by contract. Some months ago Burlingame called on him and asked him to construct two houses for him on the southeast corner of Second and Flower streets. After the buildings were completed Cole demanded his pay, but says that Burlingame put him off from time to time, and Cole saw that he has about to have trouble. At this time cole had business out of the city, and during his absence, it is claimed, Burlingame broke the door of one of the houses open and thus gained possession of the property in an illegal manner. On Cole's return he consulted his lawyer, and the result was that a mechanic's lien for $1067.50 was filed a week ago yesterday. A part of the agreement with Cole, he cistins, was that Burlingame should grade the street in front of some of Cole's houses on Flower street next to the houses that were built by Cole. This work he neglected to complete, so that Cole is out and in ared all along the line, and so are the men who worked on the house, for they had to wait for their money. As soon as the claims he has been injured in that sun. The sait will pringame for $5000 damages, as he claims he has been injured in that sun. The preliminary examination of George Westfall was had before Justice Anstin yesterday morning at 10 o'clock. Westfall is the man who, on the 20th of November last, attempted to murder his infant son by knocking him on the head in the tunnel at the reservoir north of the railroad, a rull account of which was published in The Times when it occurred. Westfall occapied a soat in the dock and appeared to take but little interest in the proceedings, only aronsing when asked by counsel to stand up for the purpose of identification. The old man presented a pitiful sight as he sat alone moodily looking into space. He is a perfect picture of imbeelilty, and if not actually insane, his mind is so weak as to render him irresponsible for his actions. Assistant District Attorney Dunlap appeared for the people, and A. E. Mason for the detense. The piece of scantling with which the blows were struck was produced in court and offered in evidence. A demurrer offered by the defense was overraled by Justice Austin, after argument, and the taking of testimony at once proceeded with, which was somewhat retarded by the constant objections of counsol for the defense, hardly a question being asked that was not objected to. The first witness called for the State was

I asked him what he had done with the child, and he said he had forgotten something and had left the child what he had done with the child, and he said he had forgotten something and had left the child white he was going. I went away and soon returned. I did not see the man return, and then went into the old city tunnel, where I found the child lying on its face, apparently dead. I at once went for some one to telephone the police. I first saw him standing on the trestle bridge over the Los Angeles River. I spoke to Westfall, asking him what he did with the child. I took the child home and sent for a doctor. I found marks of two blows on the head. The child was not crying, nor moaning, but lying motionless on his face. I know Westfall by sight. I saw him before walking up the railroad track with the same child I found on his shoulder. I next saw Westfall at the Missouri Heuse washing dishes, and arrested him. I asked him what he had done with the child, and he said he had left it with the Sisters. I told him he would have to go along with me. Mr. Vantress was recalled and asked a few questions, when Mr. Dunlap announced the case closed for the people.

Mr. Mason, of counsel for the defense, stated that he would make no defense at this time. He claimed that the defendant was insane, which he expected to prove by an inquisition in the higher court.

Justice Austin then bound the defendant, George Westfall, over to appear before the Superior Court in the sum of $2500.
